This chart is compiled with information representative of 2013-14 Pomona aid recipients. Income, in addition to family assets, family size and number of household members enrolled in undergraduate study is used to determine a student’s financial need. Students qualifying for aid whose family incomes are above $160,000 tend to be from families with more than one child in college (undergraduate). A typical financial aid package includes scholarship (gift aid) and student employment.
