NEW FACULTY

Joti Rockwell will join the faculty this semester as Assistant Professor of Music, teaching courses in music theory, popular music, and other areas. He received a B.S. from Haverford College, where he double-majored in music and physics. He then spent two years playing music professionally in a folk-rock duo that recorded five albums and performed regularly across the United States (including twice at Pomona). He then pursued his graduate studies in theory at the University of Chicago, where he was recently awarded his Ph.D. after writing a dissertation entitled "Drive, Lonesomeness, and the Genre of Bluegrass Music." He spent the past year as a Visiting Assistant Professor at the George Washington University in Washington, DC, where he taught courses on musicianship, counterpoint, form and analysis, world music, and rhythm.

Joti’s research interests include American roots music, popular music, mathematical music theory, rhythm and meter, genre, and intersections between music theory and non-canonical musics. He has presented his research at conferences of the International Association for the Study of Popular Music-US, the International Council for Traditional Music, the Society for American Music, and the Society for Ethnomusicology, as well as both national and regional meetings of the Society for Music Theory. He also continues to perform folk and bluegrass music on the acoustic guitar and mandolin.

VISITING FACULTY

Christian Campos will conduct the Pomona College Choir this semester during Professor Di Grazia’s sabbatical leave. A graduate of DePauw University, Mr. Campos received his M.A. from The University of Southern California where he is currently a student in the doctoral program. He is music director of the Eisenstadt Band and Soli Dei Gloria, and director emeritus of the Schola Cantorum of DePauw University.

ARCHIVING PROJECT

The Music Department has received a generous grant from the Meltzer Family Foundation to serve as seed money for a project to create a digital archive of recordings of departmental concerts, most of which survive on open-reel tape. These include performances by faculty, students, and guest artists.

PERFORMING ORGANIZATIONS

POMONA COLLEGE CHOIR, conducted by Christian Campos, will sing Vaughan Williams’ Serenade to Music and works by Ignazio Jérusalem, Purcell, and others on November 30 and December 2. Rehearsals are Tuesdays and Thursdays 6:30-8:00 p.m.
POMONA COLLEGE ORCHESTRA, conducted by Eric Lindholm, will perform Martinů’s Oboe Concerto with faculty soloist Francisco Castillo on October 13 and 14. On December 8 and 9 the orchestra will perform symphonies by Sibelius. Rehearsals are Tuesdays and Thursdays 6:45-9:00 p.m.

POMONA COLLEGE BAND, conducted by Graydon Beeks, will play music by Bernstein, Nixon, Surinach, and others at concerts on November 16 and 18. Rehearsals are Mondays and Wednesdays 6:45-8:10 p.m.

JAZZ ENSEMBLE, under the direction of Bobby Bradford, plays music in a variety of styles, and performs on and off campus. Rehearsals are Tuesdays and Thursdays 4:00-6:00 p.m.

POMONA COLLEGE BALINESE GAMELAN ENSEMBLE, directed by Nyoman Wenten, meets Mondays 4:00-6:00 p.m. and will present a program of Balinese music and dance on December 10.

POMONA COLLEGE HINDUSTANI MUSIC ENSEMBLE, directed by Abhiman Kaushal and David Trassoff, will meet Mondays 7:00-9:00 p.m. and give a concert of Hindustani music on December 3.

FACULTY NEWS

In June Graydon Beeks participated in meetings of the Editorial Board of the Hallische Händel-Ausgabe and the Vorstand of the G.F. Händel-Gesellschaft in Halle, Germany, where he also gave a paper on “The 1757 Triumph of Time and Truth as Career Retrospective.” His article “Angels in High Praise Thy Anthems Sung: Creating a Posthumous Repertoire of Handel Anthems” appears in the 2007 Händel-Jahrbuch. In August he was a member of the faculty of the Classical Music Festival in Eisenstadt, Austria, giving a presentation on Haydn’s knowledge of Handel’s works.

This fall music theorist Alfred Cramer pursues a long-standing interest as he teaches "Music in a Culture of Literacy," a critical inquiry seminar for first-year students. His article "Of Serpentina and Stenography: Shapes of Handwriting in Romantic Melody" appeared in 19th-Century Music last year. In June, Prof. Cramer traveled to New York to participate in the Mannes Institute for Advanced Studies in Music Theory, a gathering of distinguished music theorists and musicologists from around the world. This year's topic was "Arnold Schoenberg and his Musical Legacy."

Donna Di Grazia sang as a member of the Millennium Consort Singers, a new Los Angeles-based professional choir under the direction of Martin Neary, in their debut concert at St. Sophia’s Greek Orthodox Cathedral. The program, which featured the music of the English Renaissance composer John Taverner and the contemporary British composer John Taverner, was presented under the auspices of the Da Camera Society of Mount St. Mary’s College as part of their series “Chamber Music in Historical Sites.” Professor Di Grazia, who will be on sabbatical during the fall semester partly underwritten by an NEH Sabbatical Grant, will be working on a book on 19th-century choral music as part of the series Studies in Musical Genres published by Routledge for which she will serve as both editor and contributing author. She has spent the summer working on an article on 17th-century settings of II Samuel 18:33 with the help of two research assistants, Lucie McGee ('07) and Megan Kaes ('08), funded through the Summer Research Assistant Program of Pomona College.

Tom Flaherty’s Mesopotamia will be premiered by soprano Andrea Axelrod and pianist Paul Trueblood at The Triad in New York City in late September, and his Threnody for cello and computer will be performed in Hartford, Connecticut, by Jeff Krieger in October. In November the Pomona College Theater Department production of Moliere’s The Miser will feature twelve new songs by Flaherty. On September 17 in Bridges Hall of Music cellist Roger Lebow and marimbist David Johnson will perform Cellorimbian Flights and soprano Gwendolyn Lytle will sing Scenes from Sarajevo accompanied by Cynthia Fogg on viola and Flaherty, himself, on cello. He is currently composing a new work for soprano and electronics to be premiered by Lucy Shelton (’65) at the annual Ussachevsky Festival in February 2008, and a piece for organ scheduled to be premiered by William Peterson in April.

Katherine Hagedorn continues to make progress on her book project, Toward a Theology of Sound. She presented a paper based on one of the book chapters at San Diego State University in May 2007 entitled “Possession Performance in Afro-Cuban Regla de Ocha: Interiority, Exteriority, and the Embodiment of ‘Lived Religion’.” In July 2007, Professor Hagedorn attended the 4th Symposium on Caribbean Ethnomusicology, held in Ste-Anne, Guadeloupe, French West Indies. Her paper, “Tangible Effects of Preserving Intangible Culture in Cuba: Afro-Cuban Religious Performance and the Conjunto Folklórico Nacional – A Case Study,” was among several case studies chosen to shed light on Guadeloupe’s planned participation in the 2003 UNESCO convention on the preservation of intangible cultural heritage. Professor Hagedorn spent the rest of the summer revising articles for publication in edited volumes, and preparing for the fall 2007 semester when she will teach a new course, “Performing the Sacred.”

This summer Genevieve Lee again served as a faculty member of the Fourth Annual Beverly Hills International Music Festival and performed on the festival concert series, playing works by Copland, Mozart, and Korngold, as well as music by film composers Ennio Morricone and Benedikt Brydern. She returns to the Garth Newel Music Center in Virginia in August and October. The Mojave Trio, consisting of Lee, violinist Sara Parksins, and cellist Margaret Parkins, will be appearing again on the “Sundays Live” series at the Bing Theater of the Los Angeles County Museum on Labor Day weekend, with a delayed broadcast on KCSN 88.5 FM. On campus, Professor Lee will give a solo recital in October featuring works by Bach, Brahms, Liszt, Rzewski, and Radiohead, and she and Gwendolyn Lytle will present a concert of works by Beach, Harbison, Obradors, and others in November.

Eric Lindholm’s work last semester with the Pomona College Orchestra included performances of Robert Simpson’s Symphony #7 in March and Orff’s Carmina Burana in April, for which the orchestra was joined by the Pomona College Choir. He also wrote a tone poem for baritone and orchestra, Romeo and Juliet at the Met, based on a text by Steven Monte. The work is among the six selected for the final stage of the 2007 Dimitri Mitropoulos International Competition for Composing, and Prof. Lindholm will travel to Athens, Greece in November for the world premiere. In the fall, he will conduct the Pomona College Orchestra in works by Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Sibelius, and Martinů.

Soprano Gwendolyn Lytle participated in the Art Song in Spanish Institute, under the direction of Nan Maro Babakhanian, at the Mannes College of Music in Manhattan in late June. The participants received coachings on art songs with both guitar and piano accompaniment by composers from Spain, the Caribbean, and Latin America. The program culminated in a recital on July 2. Professor Lytle plans to introduce some of this repertoire to her students in the fall.

College Organist William Peterson performed a concert of music by Bruhns, Bach, Cage, and Kohn (Neofantasy) on the Fisk organ in Bridges Hall of Music in February. In the same month he played a concert of music by Bruhns, Buxtehude, and Bach on the four-manual Flentrop organ in Duke Chapel, Duke University. On
On September 30 he will present a concert which marks the fifth anniversary of the Inaugural Concert on the Fisk organ, Op. 117, in Bridges Hall of Music. The first half of the concert includes music from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries (including the “Pièce d’orgue” of J.S. Bach) and the second half includes French music published in the 1880s and 1890s (including Franck’s “Choral No. 1” in E Major). This summer he worked on an article, “Organ Music in the Shadow of the Great War,” which is an expansion of a paper on French organ music from the time of World War I which he read at a conference in Paris last November.

Joti Rockwell presented a paper on “Bimetricality and Linear Funk Drumming” at the Mid-Atlantic conference of the Society for Music Theory in March, and gave an invited paper on bluegrass fiddling at the Catholic University of America in April. In July he presented a paper entitled “The Crook Tunes of the Carter Family” at the International Council for Traditional Music World Conference in Vienna, Austria.

EMERITUS FACULTY

On May 22 the Viennese baritone Mathias Hausmann, accompanied by Elena Larisa, performed an all-Austrian-emigré program of songs by Korngold, Schoenberg, Zeisl, Eisler, and Professor Emeritus Karl Kohn. The intimate concert, sponsored by the Austrian Consulate in Los Angeles, took place at the Villa Aurora, the former residence of novelist Leon Feuchtwanger. On the first Faculty Recital of the fall semester two new works by Kohn will receive first performances: Rachel Rudich will play Soliloquy IV for solo flute, and the composer himself will play Three Intermezzi for piano. His Three Pieces for String Quartet (2004) will receive first performances by the Left Coast Chamber Ensemble in Mill Valley and San Francisco during November and December.

STAFF NEWS

Filling the new position of Concert Production Manager for the coming academic year, Jennifer Miller has recently relocated to Claremont from Virginia Beach, VA, where she served as Graduate Admissions Specialist for Old Dominion University. She is a classically trained vocalist, most recently running a private voice studio and serving as the Alto Section Leader for First Presbyterian Church in Norfolk, VA. Ms. Miller holds an M.M. in Voice Performance and Pedagogy from Westminster Choir College of Rider University and a B.A. in Music from St. Mary’s College of Maryland.

Jonathan Miller, electronic music technician, recently scored 40 new episodes of the TLC channel’s “Flip That House.” This fall he will be composing music for a new television series about exterminators for the Discovery Channel, and an environmentally conscious series for the new Planet Green Network. His string quartet Desert Poems (2002) is being choreographed at the University of Buffalo.

David Vanderlip, piano technician, traveled to New York over Thanksgiving 2006 with Genevieve Lee to select two new pianos for Pomona College – a 9’ Steinway D Concert Grand for Bridges Hall of Music, and a 7’ Steinway B for Lyman Hall. After the pianos were delivered, he helped baby them through their initial set-up and break-in periods. In addition to his work for Pomona College, he did a number of concert tunings in area venues for the local Steinway dealer. In addition, he was invited to teach technical sessions at Piano Technicians Guild events, such as local chapter meetings. He also was involved with administering exams through an area examinations board, which gives technical and tuning tests to Piano Technicians Guild members seeking to upgrade their classifications within the Guild.
